

Welcome to the Clark County Amphitheater Construction News Page

Quincunx of Washington, L.L.C., welcomes you to our "Construction News Page". As the Operator of the Clark County Amphitheater, we are providing the following information in an effort to keep you up-to-date on the progress of our construction activities at the Fairgrounds. We have started developing our official website which will include a calendar of events, directions to the Amphitheater, official policies and valuable information about our facility. This News Page is intended to provide area residents and other interested parties with information related to construction of the Clark County Amphitheater. We will periodically update the News Page to keep neighbors and the general public up-to-date and informed on such issues as access to the Fairgrounds, construction along NE 179th Street and the overall progress of the project.

Project Questions and Answers

Q: Will construction of the Clark County Amphitheater impact the operation of the Fair?

No. Our general contractor, Hoffman Construction, will be moving construction equipment, such as trailers and temporary power and telephone lines, to the site in mid-July, but no site construction will commence until after the end of the Clark County Fair. The location of the staging area has been coordinated with Fair Staff to ensure compatibility with Fair operations. Our construction schedule is based upon avoiding impacts to this year's Fair, while trying to complete the project so it will be available to the Fair next summer.

Q: Will this summer's construction activities impact traffic operations on NE 179th Street?

Improvements to NE 179th Street are not scheduled for this summer. The improvements to NE 179th Street should start in early March, 2003, and be completed prior to the opening of the Amphitheater. Drivers on NE 179th Street may encounter construction vehicles on NE 179th Street, the construction entrance is located on NE Delfel Road.

Q: How do I stay informed about the construction progress?

The Construction News Page will be updated periodically until we get our official website designed. At that time you will be able to link directly to our website from the County's website.
